Well-Known Physicians Speak in Words of Praise of Dr.
Edson's Discovery.

His Mail Overflowing with Anxious Inquiries and Reports of Good Already Done.

HOW A BABY'S LIFE WAS SAVED.

Drs. Brandt, Linehan, Gibler, May and Knight Full of Hopeful Enthusiasm Over a New Foe to the Deadliest Enemy of the Race.

Dr. Cyrus Edson sat in the library of his residence, No. 9 West Forty-ninth street, yesterday, with a huge pile of unopened letters at his elbow. He said that every mail brought hundreds of inquiries, congratulations and applications for his marvelous fluid. Reports of cases that are being treated also came in in numerous batches, and so far as he had been able to glance over them, they were of a most satisfactory nature. They came from physicians all over the State and country, who had been experimenting with his new consumption cure.

Dr. Edson selected a few of these at random and read them:

"Dr. D. F. Linehan, of No. 64 West Sixty-fifth street, this city, reports that he had a male patient whose complaint he diagnosed as consumption. He had been ill for five months, and at the commencement of the Edson treatment his condition was very bad.
He had a very severe cough, and expec-torated once or twice a day. He had lost weight, and his appetite was poor. He had previously been treated at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

"Dr. Linehan commenced to treat the patient on January 7 last. The night succeeding the first injection the patient had a complete night's rest, and was not disturbed at all by coughing. The man himself said it was the first uninterrupted sleep he had enjoyed for four months. The fever left the patient after the first week's treatment, and by the first of February there was no insomnia, no night sweats and his appetite was good. The patient has now gained six pounds in weight, and the treat-

An Encouraging Case.
"Dr. Linehan also reports the case of a male patient, twenty-seven years of age, who for the past two years has been sick with phthisis pulmonalis. Prior to treatment with the Edson method he had profuse expectoration, shortness of breath and pains in the chest and back. One slight hemorrhage had occurred about three months ago, and there was extensive consolidation of the upper part of the right lung. As results of the treatment the ex-pectoration decreased very much and he could easily exert himself without increased respiration. The pains are gone, and the area of consolidation has grown less. During three weeks' treatment he has gained two pounds each week, and feels himself daily growing better and stronger."

Dr. Edson gave the following details of the interesting case of a patient of his own, a twenty-four-year-old man, whose initials are W. J. H.:
"The normal weight of this man would be 145 pounds, but he was reduced to 121 pounds. His family record was good. For two years he had suffered from phthisis pulmonalis, which had commenced with an attack of bronchitis. The loss of flesh had been gradual. He had night sweats, severe cough, and daily expectorated two ounces of mucous matter loaded with tuberculous bacilli streptococci. Other symptoms were loss of strength, rapid breathing and a large cavity and extreme consolidation in apex and upper left lung. Temperature, 103.
"Treatment commenced December 1, when 100 minims and the spray were given.
On December 10 the patient was much stronger. The cough and expectoration had decreased to about one-half. There were no night sweats after the third day of treatment. Fever bacilli were found in the sputa, but there was no change apparent in the patient's physical system.
"On the 22d of December the improvements before noticed were maintained.
There was no change in the sputa conditions, except a gain in weight of five pounds. On January 1 the patient raised little more than half the quantity of mucus, in which no purulent matter was found. He had gained three more pounds in weight, making eight pounds in all.
This improvement has since continued. He called on me to-day. He coughs scarcely at all now. He has gained eighteen pounds in weight, and seems to be quite well.
"I have not yet discharged him from treatment, as the weather is dangerous and I wish to continue a little longer, but he is to all intents and purposes cured."

What Other Physicians Say.
DR. E. N. BRANDT, OF NO. 8 EAST FORTY-SEVENTH STREET:
It is impossible for me to speak too highly of Dr. Edson's discovery. I have applied his treatment in many cases of consumption and similar diseases for the past six months, and the results have been simply marvelous. To praise it too highly would be difficult. After one injection the bacilli are very much lessened, and with these exterminated and cleared from the sputa it seems to me that all the patient has to do is to get well.

In every case where I have applied Dr. Ed-son's treatment there has been almost immediately a marked improvement, and sixty to seventy per cent of these are now completely cured. I certainly consider the discovery one of the most important ever made in medical science. A patient of mine was an eight-month-old female child. The infant only weighed seven and a half pounds. I diagnosed the case as enterocolitis, supposed to be of tubercular origin. Prior to treatment the temperature was 103. She could stand no food.
The cough was almost constant, there was edema of the feet and legs and the abdomen was tympanitic. Treatment commenced October 2, 1894. The remedy was at first administered hypodermically in doses of twenty drops a day. This was increased by five drops daily until fifty minims were given.
At the end of ten days the child slept well, the food was retained and the temperature became normal. At the end of the second week she had gained a pound and a half. In three weeks the gain was three pounds. Two injections only were given her during the third week. The injections were all given in the abdomen, and I observed no local irritation or ill effects whatever. The child now weighs twenty-seven pounds.

DR. CALVIN S. MAY, NO. 205 WEST FIF-TY-SEVENTH STREET—I have used the remedies of Dr. Deulat for many years in my practice, and with very satisfactory results. Dr.
Edson has made an advance in the same direction, and I will watch the tests that may be made with the new fluid with the keenest interest. Dr. Deulat came here twelve or fifteen years ago from France with various preparations of phenol. The combinations had a variety of bases, but phenol appeared to be the essential element. The remedies were given internally, with syrups when the patients' stomachs would stand it, and with glycerine in other cases.

Dr. Deulat did not get the reception here that he expected and returned to Europe, leaving some disciples, who, I believe, have been using phenol in curing consumption ever since. The remedies have been for sale, and I have used them repeatedly. In many cases the results I obtained with Dr. Deulat's remedies were wonderful.

THE THEORY OF PHENOL.
The theory, as I understood it, was that consumption could be cured by properly lessening fermentation in the digestive tract. Dr. Ed-son's fluid being administered hypodermically ought to have immediate effect. Its curative property will be generally known soon, and with general use will come a better understanding of it. It will be a wonderful thing for medicine if frequent and permanent cures do follow the use of the remedy.

DR. C. H. KNIGHT, NO. 147 WEST FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET—There have been so many consumption cures that have proved of little use that physicians may hail with much satisfaction this new one which seems to have accomplished so much at the start. It does not do to be too fast, however, for patients suffering with phthisis are proverbially hopeful. They always feel that a new remedy, whatever it is, will cure them, and always appear to feel better after taking it. It was not so long ago that everybody was talking tuberculosis. I tried it with the rest. Now we have all discarded it. I hope it will not be so with Dr. Edson's fluid.

WAS THE POLICEMAN DRUNK?
Mr. Abbott Says So and Roosevelt Made a Complaint Against Sullivan.
President Roosevelt yesterday ordered a complaint of drunkenness to be lodged against Policeman Edward F. Sullivan, of the Leonard Street Station. The complaint grew out of a scene which Mr. Lawrence Abbott witnessed from the window of the office of the Outlook Company, on Astor place. Mr. Abbott is the son of Rev. Dr.
Lyman Abbott, pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

He told President Roosevelt that he saw a policeman staggering along on the opposite side of the street. The policeman was apparently intoxicated. Mr. Abbott took his number and learned his identity at Police Headquarters. Sullivan said that he would prove that he was at the station house at the time.
